Question: 1

You are typing a document and you want to insert a table in landscape orientation on the next page while the document is in portrait orientation. What will you do to accomplish the task?

- A. Use next page section break.
- B. Go to next page and insert the table.
- C. Use template.
- D. Use page break.

---

Answer: A

---

Explanation:

Next page section break will start a new section on the next page and the user will be able to apply the formatting of his choice.

Answer option D is incorrect. Page break is a feature in which the text automatically moves to the next page when it encounters the end of the page. This feature is also known as soft page break. When a page break is inserted manually, it is known as hard page break.

Answer option C is incorrect. A template is a tool that is used to create a standard layout and the look and feel across multiple pages. A user creates a template when he wants to apply the same layout to multiple pages in a document. When he makes a change in the template, all the pages associated with it are affected and the corresponding change is reflected in all the pages. Answer option B is incorrect. This option is incorrect because the orientation of the page will not be changed to landscape.

What is section break?

Section break divides a document in various sections so that different types of formatting can be applied to different pages, e.g., if the document is typed in portrait orientation and the image is to be inserted in landscape orientation then the section break is used.

What are the different types of section break?

There are four types of section break, which are as follows:

- 1.Next page: It inserts a section break and start the new section on the next page.
- 2.Continuous: It inserts a section break and start the new section on the same page.
- 3.Even page: It inserts a section break and start the new section on the next even numbered page.
- 4.Odd page: It inserts a section break and start the new section on the next odd numbered page.
